KC Woodturner Larry Dice demonstrated applying ornamental paint to platters

Larry has been a KC Woodturners club member for a number of years. He has also been a club officer. A couple years ago Larry donated one of his paint decorated platters to the Silent Art Auction and the bidders fought over it. The paint he uses is an Acrylic paint from Golden Fluid Acrylics called an "Interference" Acrylic which needs to have a dark background for it to show properly. He starts his paint decoration by spraying black rattlecan lacquer . Then he applies the Interference Acrylic and spreads it in an unusual way that can be found in most kitchens. Larry also uses a hairdryer for the purpose of time restraints. Finally, he uses a gloss spray lacquer as a topcoat. All of this can work be done in one hour or less depending on the drying time and the design of the platter/plate.

Saturday mornings generally finds Dave Alexander turning bowls. After that it's anybody's guess. On this Saturday Mike Erickson was cutting up timber brought in for the club and Anthony Harris was making sure he did it right. Kris Coyan was turning a goblet.

SUNDAY SCHOOL is always a good time. When the weather is good we meet in a park and discuss everything from Ash to Zebra Wood. Sometimes it's a bit cool so jackets and coffee are called for but the comradery and exchange of information are worth it to Edd Maxwell, Larry Dice Mike Erickson, Jerry Darter, David Burks, Anthony Harris, Ed Jaszczak.

THE NELSON-ATKINS MUSEUM OF ART

A little while ago KCWT was contacted by a person who worked at the Nelson-Atkins Museum of Art. She had been looking at ETSY and had seen our site. She was very interested in discussing the purchase of some items and making them available for sale at the store in the Nelson.

With the assistance of one of our Board members and the cooperation of a number of our members, she purchased a few items and they are now available in the Nelson.

Now you all have another reason to go to the Nelson. The coffee shop is wonderful, the food in Rozzelle Court is superb, and the rest of the gallery is fantastic. While you are at the Nelson be sure to stop in the store and take a look at the wood art that is for sale.

The Board member was Wendy Lythgoe and the Nelson employee was Stephanie Finkelstein. These two worked very hard to get our pieces in the Nelson Store. It is quite an honor and when you see either of these two, please thank them for the effort they have put into this endeavor. Of course, to see Stephanie you need to go to the Nelson. Enjoy the visit.

Nifty Gadgets for the Kitchen

Functional kitchen items are fun to make and a delight to use. Unlike mass produced items, the personal touch of the maker combined with creativity in design and wood selection make handmade kitchen utensils extra special.

Whether you're building your skills or are an expert woodturner in need of a handmade gift, useful kitchen items will bring joy to the cooks in almost any kitchen.

This week's picks focus on useful kitchen gadgets you can turn for yourself or someone else.

In the article, "Top it Off in Style: Olive Oil Dispenser," from the Summer 2003 issue of American Woodturner, Jerry Hubschman shares how to make a handy stopper to use with an attractive bottle for serving up olive oil. He says the turning itself is straight forward, but the assembly can be a bit more challenging.

Live Online Event

WIT Presents: 2022 Virtual WIT EXCHANGE

Presentation of Projects

Saturday, June 4, 2022

3:00 p.m. Eastern Time

The Women in Turning (WIT) committee published an open invitation to women makers challenging them to participate in an exercise of creativity in an environment of collaboration with other women from around the globe. In the end, 48 women from 8 countries became 16 collaborative teams. Their collective efforts will be showcased during this event.

Please join us as we showcase the creativity, and skills, shared, learned, and used by these makers for this collaboration. This is a virtual art show that includes a rare look behind the scenes at the creative process. Each team documented, then condensed their journey into lively, thoughtful, creative, sometimes humorous, and always entertaining 5-minute presentations. It is our hope you will find inspiration in these projects to enhance your own creative process.

This is not a demonstration. WIT Presents events offer attendees new insights into the inspirations, influences, and creative processes behind the artists' work.
